Mandatory Water Conservation is in effect.

As the whole central Oklahoma region is in a conservation mode due to the wide spread drought, different cities have different conservation rules. The City of Norman wants to remind customers of Norman's Mandatory Conservation rules which include odd/even rotation for irrigation purposes with no watering on Wednesday and Thursday. Hand watering gardens/plants/shrubs with a hose is allowed at any time.

The odd/even rotation means that if your address ends on an odd number, you may water on odd calendar days. If your address ends on an even number, you may water on even calendar days. However, there is no watering on Wednesday and Thursday so that our water treatment facilities can catch up with demand and replenish the water storage tanks.

For detailed information regarding the mandatory conservation rules and/or access to Norman's Water Conservation Plan and Drought Contingency Plan, go to the City of Norman's web site at www.normanok.gov.
